

Use opal jewelry to make your life beautiful

The October birthstone Opal has a strong connection with vision and intuition and is also used with feng shui to activate and improve these attributes. The excellent color play and wide variety make every Opal Ring piece unique Opal is a type of silica chemically similar to quartz but consists of water within the mineral formation. Valuable Opal typically consists of 6-10% water and microscopic silica spheres arranged in a regular pattern.

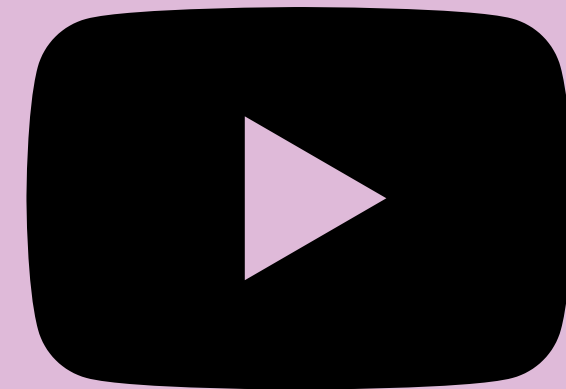

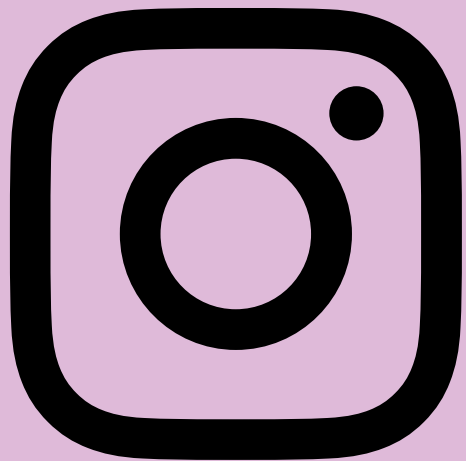

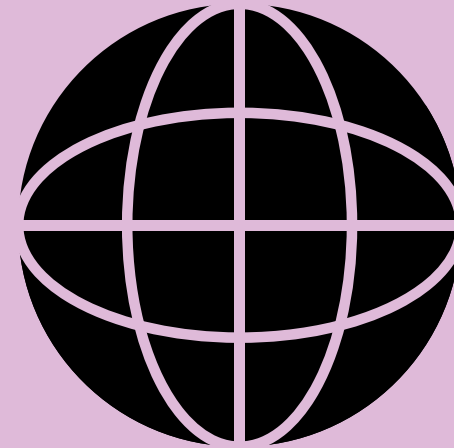

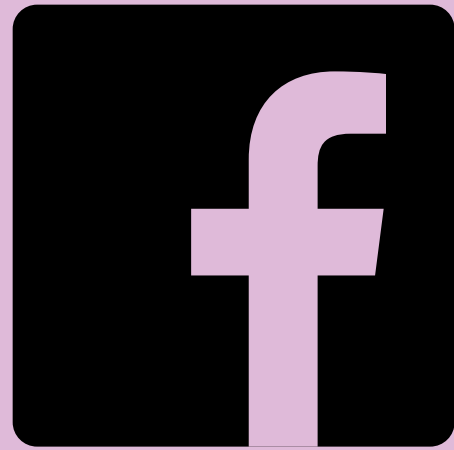

The colorful stones come mainly from Australia and Ethiopia, and this eye-catching gemstone captures the heart of every individual. They are formed of silica and water, which makes them fragile and less durable. Opal jewelry was the favorite gemstone of Queen Victoria, as she used to wear it in the form of a necklace and earrings. She believed that these gemstones had kept her emperor safe from all evil eyes. Moreover, she has gifted these gems to her daughters as well for their ultimate protection.
